

Wealth Management Law Concentration

(Revised September 2022)

Wealth Management Law combines knowledge of traditional estate planning with the legal knowledge to grow and preserve a client's wealth. The College of Law offers a 15-credit hour Program of Concentrated Study in Wealth Management Law (Program). Students who complete the Program receive a certificate suitable for framing along with their diploma at graduation, and completion of the Program is noted on the student's final law school transcript. To complete the Program, you must take the three required courses listed below, and two elective courses. You may take a substitute elective course with the advance permission of Professor Colleen E. Medill, who is the faculty advisor for the Program.

Prior to graduation, you must indicate your intent to participate in the Program by completing the necessary paperwork indicating the course you will use to complete the Program and have the paperwork signed by Professor Medill.

If after completing the initial paperwork you are unable to take a course listed on your form, contact Professor Medill to arrange for a substitute course.
